No verdict will be returned until the witnesses will be returned until the witnesses are heard. The identity of members of the mob is not known. There were a number of parties from the country in town. The composition of the mob is unknown as they were masked and did their work very quietly until all was over District Attorney Davis is here pushing the investigation.

ton, is the man whom Landers, alias Burkhart, testified paid the money to Frank Ricky for the assassination of John M Clayton at Plummerville January 29, 1888. The investigation now on foot over the lynching of Flanagan Thornton may unexpectedly throw some light on the Clayton case. The crime for which Thornton was indicted and lynched was committed at Menifee, a small station about fifteen miles east of this place, two weeks ago. Pate went to Thornton's house and asked his wife about a certain party for whom he had a warrant. She told him where he was, but Pate not find-ing him returned and abused the woman Thornton on his return home was told about it. He found Pate at Meni-fee and abused him considerably. Pate returned home to Plummerville, got a warrant for Thornton, and returned the next evening, intending to arres him. The latter saw him coming and shot him twice with a Winchester.
